- 1. Did the keynote this morning get you thinking about your own preparedness for an event like this? What were your thoughts?
- 2. What experiences, if any, have you had with mass violence in your community? What were those experiences like? How did you respond? What did you learn through that experience?
- 3. How have you prepared (if at all) for incidents of mass violence in your communities?
- 4. What more do you want/need to know about preparing for mass violence?
- 5. What steps do you think your community should take to be prepared?
- 6. How do you think responses to mass violence and needs might differ in Indian Country to responses/needs in other parts of the country? In other words, what's unique about Indian Country when it comes to mass violence response?
